

Traditional Irish SLOW SESSION

Every Tuesday Evening, 7:30 – 9:00pm,

6:30 – 7:30 for complete beginners

At the RCHA, 193 Ontario Street, at Clarence

All welcome. All ages. No charge

A ‘session’ is just a bunch of friends in a circle, playing tunes together. A ‘slow’ session is a teaching session for people just starting to play their instruments or for more experienced musicians new to Irish music. There’s a limited, easy to learn repertoire, and the tunes are played at an accessible pace. We are an informal group who meet every Tuesday night to play and learn and have some fun.

The slow session welcomes people at all levels on all instruments, from beginners to advanced players new to the Irish repertoire. We provide a music book, and cd’s of the tunes played slowly. It’s an excellent way for beginners to see how much fun a trad session can be and also a good place for the more experienced to pick up a tune or two. It’s free, the mood is good, and the tunes are wonderful.

Even better for a great night out, there’s a regular session afterwards, across the street at the Tir na nOg, at 9:00
